Though every year produces a superior list of young individuals whose contributions to their companies, clients and communities prove to be outstanding, this year's rising stars really outdid themselves. They not only do they possess the business-savvy skills and wherewithal that are incumbent upon young professionals, but 2008's 40 Under 40 list encompasses some of the most aggressive, entrepreneurial, civic-minded and eco-conscious men and women that Real Estate Southern California has ever seen. Politicians may say the world is in trouble, but with these people at the helm it's hard to envision commercial real estate—at least in Southern California—falling apart anytime soon.

JASON JAMISON, 33

President, GM Properties

Jamison's career took off in 2001 when he purchased GM Properties at the ripe old age of 26. Since that time, he has expanded his company's property management portfolio from 350,000 sf to 1.5 million sf of industrial and commercial space. When he's not overseeing his portfolio or staff of 14 brokers and property managers, Jamison sits on the board of directors for SIOR and AIR, as well as the La Habra Boys & Girls Club.
